evocos Launches New Event Management Solution Website

23rd September 2010, Guildford, Surrey: Event management software provider evocos is pleased to announce the launch of the new evocos website: <http://www.evocos.co.uk>. evocos is one of the leading providers of event management software in the UK and helps companies save time and money through creating a more efficient event management process. Their website has been live since 2008 but has now been brought up to date with a new, more engaging design.

The new website is more interactive than its predecessor, with a blog, article library and white papers. The site also has links to the various evocos social media channels, including Twitter– <http://twitter.com/evocosEvents>, YouTube - <http://www.youtube.com/evocosEvents> and Facebook <http://www.facebook.com/pages/evocos-Event-Management-System/171463856313>

Commenting on the new website, Kate Oxtton Marketing Manager for evocos said “We’re really thrilled with the new website – it’s far more user friendly than our old site. Visitors will now be able to find a wide range of information and resources relating to evocos and event management in general. The website needed to be more than just a new design; we wanted it to be more engaging and to encourage user participation – and I think we’ve achieved that.”

New features of the evocos website include an integrated blog, an expanded white paper library, a downloadable online demo and event management information for companies split by industry sector.

The new website is now live and can be found at <http://www.evocos.co.uk>.
